

The reasons you should choose vinyl replacement windows

When shopping for new replacement windows there are a couple of materials you can choose from. You could choose wooden frames, fiberglass frames or vinyl frames. We believe that vinyl is one of your better options, which is why we've gathered the reasons that vinyl replacement windows are the best choice.

They are not very expensive

If you're looking for windows that don't come with high costs while still providing quality then the vinyl replacement windows are probably your best option. To make the vinyl windows more or less expensive you can choose between double pane and triple pane or the kind of gas you have between the glass layers. But no matter what you choose, vinyl replacement windows always give you good worth for your money.

Despite them being less expensive than for example wooden windows they do offer the same energy efficiency. Which means that you pay less for the windows but do save the same amount of money on your energy bill. So, switching from wooden frames to vinyl frames would be like making money.

Vinyl windows don't require maintenance

Wooden window frames can be gorgeous, but they require a lot of upkeep to keep them looking that pristine. Vinyl windows require very little to no upkeep at all. They don't need to be painted or refinished. This will save you a lot of time and money as well.

On top of this, vinyl windows are very easy to clean as well. Aluminium windows can be very hard to clean and cost you a lot of time. For vinyl windows you just need a sponge and some water to clean them.

Vinyl windows are very durable

If you live in area where the weather can get pretty rough then vinyl windows are a good option as well. No matter what hits your windows, snow, wind or rain, vinyl will keep looking good. Unlike wood, vinyl windows won't start to chip or break down. Vinyl windows can last you 20 years, which is a lot longer than your other options. So if you want window frames that will remain beautiful for a long time then vinyl windows are for you.

Vinyl can look like wood

Perhaps you just love the look of wooden frames, which is understandable. Wood has a very classic and authentic look. Luckily you can make your vinyl frames look like wood when a wood trim is applied. That way you can enjoy the wooden look with all the benefits of a vinyl frame.

The cons of a vinyl frame

Of course every choice you make has its cons too, so does the choice for vinyl window frames. A con of vinyl wooden frames is that you cannot paint them if you want to change the colour of your windows. Wood is a lot more customizable than vinyl frames are. So if you're someone who changes their mind quite often when it comes to how they want their home to look then a vinyl frame may not be the best choice.

The other con of vinyl frames in comparison with wooden frames is that even when you get a wooden trim they will never have the same authentic feel as wood does. So if you're going for a really specific style that needs wooden window frames then you might want to opt out of vinyl frames.

Vinyl frames have a lot of pros and cons but they can probably be your ideal solution for your replacement windows. So make sure to ask for the options when you need to replace your windows. Every company that does replacement windows will have a good option for vinyl frames so make sure to ask.
